

A Conversation with

LUCINDA FLEESON

SPONSORED BY

UNIVERSITY
LIBRARIES

Thursday
March 31
4:30-6:00pm

McKeldin Library, Room 6137
Special Events Room

Like so many of us, Lucinda Fleeson wanted to escape what had become a routine life. So, she quit her big-city job, sold her suburban house, and moved halfway across the world. Her grown-up adventure is a reminder of the value of choosing passion over security, individuality over convention, and the pressing need to protect the earth. Fleeson is Director of the Hubert Humphrey Fellowship Program at the University of Maryland's Philip Merrill College of Journalism.

