

A Conversation with

JAMES GIMPEL

SPONSORED BY

UNIVERSITY
LIBRARIES

Wednesday
October 19
4:30-6:00pm

McKeldin Library, Room 6137
Special Events Room

Rejecting a simplistic division of the United States into blue states and red states, James Gimpel and Dante Chinni argue that the nation more accurately breaks down into twelve distinct kinds of communities. The authors demonstrate the subtle distinctions in how Americans vote, invest, and consume in these communities. Our Patchwork Nation is a refreshing, sometimes startling, look at how America's diversities often defy conventional wisdom.

