

A Conversation with

SPONSORED BY

MARK FELDSTEIN

Tuesday
October 23

5:00pm (Please note the later-than-usual start time!)

McKeldin Library, Room 6137
Special Events Room

Poisoning the Press recounts the bitter quarter-century battle between the postwar era's most contentious politician and its most reviled newsman. The struggle between Richard Nixon and Jack Anderson included bribery, blackmail, burglary, spying, and sexual smears — even a White House plot to assassinate Anderson. In this riveting, real-life drama that the New York Times called “a master class in gutter politics,” Mark Feldstein traces the arc of this confrontation between a vindictive president and a flamboyantly crusading muckraker.

