I. COLLECTING OBJECTIVES

- SCPA seeks to collect primary sources and secondary sources of enduring value containing substantial informational content that pertain to select subject areas within a defined scope.
- All materials are acquired with the intention that they will encourage new original research, support any level of performance programming, and provide resources for genealogical research or individual memory, all while furthering UMD's educational mission.
- SCPA reserves the right to refuse any donation due to size, scope, redundancy to existing collections, or terms accompanying the potential gift.
- SCPA must possess physical ownership of all new acquisitions or accretions to existing collections, and will not accept materials or collections on deposit.
- SCPA does not require transfer of copyright for new acquisitions or accretions to existing collections.

- At the donor’s request, SCPA will restrict materials for an agreed upon duration to protect personal relationships and reputations of the living.
- SCPA will restrict acquisitions of three-dimensional objects of limited evidential or informational value that are relevant only due to intrinsic qualities.
- SCPA does not seek to recreate on site the personal libraries of scholars or performers.

II. ACTIVE SUBJECT AREAS

1. American Performing Arts Manuscripts

- Seek unique manuscript documents and scores of high informational value created by notable Americans in the performing arts
- Of particular interest are manuscript materials created by authors, company leaders, choreographers, composers, performers, notable educators, band conductors, and high profile critics
- We will target materials or collections pertaining to dance or theatre that complement music-related manuscripts found in the Irving & Margery Morgan Lowens Manuscript Collection
