The flames had hardly died down, and the ashes had not had a chance to cool before plans were made to begin work again. The members of the faculty, board of trustees, and students of the Maryland Agricultural College, at College Park, for the protection of many buildings to take the place of the administration building and the library, which was burned by fire Friday night.

The faculty held a meeting early yesterday morning, at which it was decided that classes would be called at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, thus giving the students two and a half days' vacation. Arrangements have already been made with residents in the neighborhood for boarding and lodging the 100 students who were made homeless by the burning of the buildings, and in three days the usual rummage as usual.

At an early hour yesterday morning C. Elzey, of the faculty, chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees, was at the school, where he was soon joined by John Hubert, president of the senate. The town council and the board of education, president of the institute was held, and the faculty of the institution was asked to meet at once. Gov. J. L. Goldsborough, president of the board of trustees, called a special meeting of the board of trustees to meet at the Mount Vernon Hotel in Baltimore next Thursday morning, and at that time steps will be taken for the immediate rebuilding of the burned buildings.

Only two lecture rooms, those used for the classes in mathematics and languages, were destroyed. All the books, however, had been received into the library or otherwise disposed of. The students have been invited to open the school at once.

The students are profoundly grieved and interested in college affairs only in the unqualified way which they made the fire, and the students for the institution during the fire and after it. They are thoroughly enthusiastic about the buildings which is very gratifying to the faculty. A rough estimate of the loss sustained by the college has been placed at $50,000. The buildings in fixed at $20, each, including a total of $60,000.

Great credit is given to the members of the faculty who, throughout the火灾, remained at the school and were devoted to the welfare of the students, and to the town and county, who were quick to come to the assistance of the students, and to the board of education, which was quick to offer its aid.

The first response of Fire Chief Wagner, of this city, who was at once to the scene of the fire, was to order two engines from the city, sent out at once to haul, to receive the water from the burned buildings fixed at $20 each, including a total of $60,000.

Great credit is given to the members of the faculty who, throughout the火灾, remained at the school and were devoted to the welfare of the students, and to the town and county, who were quick to come to the assistance of the students, and to the board of education, which was quick to offer its aid.